For additional information ask the nearest agent, Burlington route or write for a California folder to J. Francis, general passenger agent, Burlington route, Omaha, Neb.

—It is the first few years after a census is taken that the world can be said to be sold in the United States this year at $12 each. But TEN JOURNAL can give you one, together with one year's subscription to our paper for $3.40. Look at advertisement on opposite page. Call and ask to see the book.

—Work on changing L. G. Zinscher's building to face Thirtieth street is going right along. The interior of the building is to be entirely remodeled, with a new steel ceiling, tile flooring and new fixtures throughout, and when completed will be as fine a barber parlor as one would wish to see. Louis is bound to keep abreast of the times.

—At the last general meeting of the Woman's club held at Mrs. C. G. Gray's it was voted to hold an art exhibit to help defray expenses which the club will incur during the State federation to be held in Columbus, October next. The committee appointed has decided that the date for this exhibit shall be June 6. The place will be announced later.

—Some of Lee Bay's friends up at Westville are advising him to give up farming and branch out as an investor, all caused from the fact that last week, while walking behind his corn lines, he discovered that in looking around at his neighbors most of them were riding.

—He began to think, and came to the conclusion he could "rig up" a riding machine himself. So, calling on a farmer whom he knew had a pair of discarded wheels, he bought them for a dollar, and in very short order he was riding along just like any other contented man, who had found something that had been waiting all to please.

—The Columbus City Band gave a concert Sunday afternoon in the park. A large crowd dispersed themselves under the shade of the trees to listen to the music for over an hour, and it was all right, O. K., No. 1 from every standpoint.

—About two weeks ago Anton Nelson lost from his daughter-house some thirty dollars' worth of pork, about three-fourths of the fresh pork he had hung up the evening before it was stolen. Notwithstanding the efforts made, and notwithstanding that he thinks he knows who got the pieces taken, there have not, as yet, been developments enough to lay the foundation for prosecution.

—The Y. M. C. A. meetings, next Sunday, May 19 (3 p. m. special men's session; evening for everybody, none excepted, all cordially invited), will be held at the North opera house. All who sing are very earnestly requested to be at the Methodist church this Wednesday evening for the only chorus practice for the evening meeting at the opera house. No admission charged; a free-will offering will be received.

—John Dawson of Oconee has a herd of Hereford cattle that now numbers one hundred, and they are a fine-looking lot of white-faces. TEN JOURNAL has taken occasion to remark that among the good qualities of this breed are that they are good feeders, and excellent all-around cattle. A good combination for Nebraska, in valleys, surety, in cattle, hogs and alfalfa, with necessary subsidiary products.

—If Platte county people know when they are well off they will vote bonds for a new court house at Columbus without hesitating. That point is bound to remain the seat of government whether or no, and the old court house is liable to collapse one of these days and be the death of several reputable citizens, whose weeping relatives will at once proceed to exact heavy damages from the tax-payers.—Birby.

—"How shall I write of my mother," says Helen Keller in the April Ladies' Home Journal. "She is so near to me that it almost seems indecent to speak of her. We never dream of comparing our mother to another; it is enough that she is our mother—the being in whose beneficent tenderness is security and joy. To describe her would be like attempting to put into words the fragrance of a flower or the smile on a beloved face."

—The 60-foot wooden bridge on the Union Pacific and a half mile east of Schuyler was so badly damaged by fire Friday last that it was considered unsafe for the passage of trains, and this condition continued for nine hours, trains going round in the meantime on available routes. Conductor Murphy was the first to notice the burning bridge. The supposition is that a spark from some passing train had found lodging and fuel in the bridge.

—Peter Duffy, graduate of the last year's High school, has written a story for the last Reflector, "How our lecture was made a success," which deserves more than a passing thought. The story is simply the incidents around the forming of the first lecture course and of the first entertainment in Columbus, and although no names are mentioned, those acquainted in the High school easily recognize each person. The merit in the composition is not so much in the subject as in how Mr. Duffy has handled it. To write an interesting story about the common occurrences of life is the sign of genius, and Mr. Duffy has made this story interesting from first to last.

—Frank Yates went down to Omaha Tuesday and purchased through an agent in that city 100 acres of land in Canada. Dr. Hewitt has also purchased a couple of sections of land there and a whole lot of people around Bellwood now have the Canada fever. Some of the widows are even talking of emigrating.

—A great many farmers scattered around the country are now wishing they had bred more hogs a few years ago when the prices were low. When the prices were at the low point nearly everybody was at the low point, but they had best right on they would now be reaping a nice harvest. This is usually the way it goes.—Bellwood Gazette.

—The Ohio, (Ohio) Sentinel has this to say of a subject that may interest some Journal readers: "The supreme court of Ohio recently handed down an opinion denying the right of anybody to erect telephones or light poles in front of a residence without the permission of owner. This is exactly the reverse of the holding of the circuit court of this circuit, and exactly in accord with the decision of Judge Mansfield in such cases. The streets are for the passage of the public, and the first duty of authority is to keep them for that purpose. The law recognizes the easement of the lot owner when it compels him to improve to the middle of the street when such improvements are ordered."

—A party of ladies from Albion have been guests of Columbus friends for several days past, returning home Saturday. The ladies were entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Benham and Mrs. Robinson; the same evening Mr. and Mrs. Rosen entertained at their home. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Martyn and Mrs. Evans invited guests to the home of the former, and in the evening a dancing party was given in Mesanor hall by Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Ornelius and Mr. and Mrs. Adams. Friday afternoon, Mrs. Chambers entertained, assisted by Miss Curdery of Leigh, and the same evening Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Evans. The ladies present from Albion were Mesdames M. G. Needham, E. R. Needham, H. F. Lehr, E. W. Gunther, Hattie Pittenger, G. W. Kline, John Peters, Wolfe, and the Misses Peters.

—Edgar Howard, Herbert Barran, Bert Shreve and Miss Martha Turner were in attendance at the State Press association meeting in Lincoln, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. The meetings were well attended and were interesting, developing as brilliant speakers as the press have writers throughout the state. The visitors were royally entertained by their Lincoln friends. Wednesday afternoon the State Historical society held a memorial service in their rooms for the late Sterling Morton, editor of the Conservative, and later served refreshments. In the evening the association was the guests of the State Journal to a theater party to hear John Drew. Many other courtesies were shown the guests.

—The body of John E. Koenig of Butler county was found last Saturday afternoon about three-quarters of a mile from his home, in the trunk of a second-hand car.

He had been in the trunk since the morning of the 8th of May. His pockets contained a bottle half-filled with strychnine and a razor, which fact suggested suicide. The remains were buried at Bellwood. He had, doubtless, from what is privately learned, troubles of his own, the right way out of which, he wrongly imagined he could not find.

—Charles McCune, a former employee of TEN JOURNAL, who has been editing the Dispatch at Cody, Wyoming, has sold out and accepted a position on the Omaha World-Herald.

Mr. McCune says Cody is a town of some 300 people, many of whom are living in tents. W. F. Cody has interested New York capitalists in building a $25,000 hotel, of which the country may well be proud. Railroad companies are also interested in establishing the shortest route to the National Park through Cody. Mr. McCune does not have much faith in the country around Cody, unless irrigation shall become a fixed fact, which seems far distant.

—A most distressing accident occurred at Waverly last Thursday, relates the Madison Chronicle. Mrs. George Wheeler, while doing her regular week's washing, stepped out of the house for a few moments to hang up some clothes, leaving the little girl of 13 months, Ethel Gertrude, playing about in the house and on the porch.

A large stone jar containing a little water stood on the floor in the house, and during the absence of the mother the little toddler attempted to play in the water and fell into the jar head-first, and was in that condition when the mother found her. She was past all hope of saving and the mother's frenzied cries fell upon deaf ears. The little life had gone out.

—Quite a few base-ball enthusiasts met Friday evening at Zinscher's Midway barber shop for the purpose of organizing a club for the season. The following officers were elected: J. W. Fauble president and manager; Carl Hecker vice president; Wm. Zinscher secretary-treasurer; Wm. Baker corresponding secretary; Harry Lehr captain. The players have not yet been selected. Another meeting for the completion of the organization will be held tomorrow (Thursday), evening at Judge Curtis' office, after which, we presume, games will be arranged for, one or two of which the management will endeavor to have played here during the meeting of the state druggists the first week in June.

—There is always opportunity for the exercise of a man's genius. We had even supposed that the street-crossing west of Niewohner's on Olive street was intended by the authorities to show those who pay the city's bills what might be done at every crossing, for the price available in the treasury, but when we came to talk with Jacob Giar, commanding his work for all the good apparent, viz: the deep foundation of brick-bats, pounded down; the strong, thick layer of cement, which with proper time given to set, will increase in solidity as time goes by, we found that his ideal mental picture of a crossing, costing less perhaps, considering all things, than the actual one under our feet, was a long stride forward. Stand up for the city.

—W. C. Tompelson of Fullerton was in the city Friday, returning home from a trip to Iowa. Mr. Tompelson informed us that he had purchased the Fullerton Post of his uncle, J. W. Tanner, and would take possession of the office Saturday. Mr. Tanner was one of the founders of the Post, which was established June, 1888, and now that he has laid down the tripod, will be easily missed by the Nebraska newspaper fraternity. The sale of the office was made on account of Mr. Tanner's wife's health, which necessitates removal to a more congenial climate, and shortly the couple will remove to Arizona, where, it is hoped by their many friends that health will be restored and prosperity attend them.

—Every school building should have a Dictionary, Encyclopedia, Bible and Atlas. We can furnish you the Atlas at a price that will astonish you. This is not an old printed book, but printed in the year, 1912, containing the same, population and location in state, of every postoffice in the United States. Besides this, the book has complete maps of every state in the union, many city maps that show the exact location of every block, 49 comparative diagrams giving the statistics of the United States according to the new census and other official sources. In short, you cannot afford to be without it, when you can have it, together with TEN JOURNAL for $3.40. See our advertisement on opposite page.

—The word "butter" means one thing, and "oleo" quite another. There is a growing tendency the world over to call things by their right names, and thus, the lowest number of confounding people will be injured from false appearance. If the farmers had their full way, they would not be so much interested in any price, however low. If the other fellows had their scheme fully developed, their objective would be attained when they should succeed in combining the cheapest materials attainable, to so counterfeit butter (fresh, sweet and palatable) that the dairy-maid herself wouldn't know the difference between the true and the false commodity. There possibly are some who imagine all sorts of vain and foolish things, probably containing the notion that they should find for themselves, in the open market or otherwise, the best of butter, for the lowest price of oleo. It is, however, very evident, from the close and increasing attention that has been given the subject the past few years, that the good, everyday people (who always want to be fair to themselves and to be fairly treated or know the reason why) would prefer to get good butter even at extra-good prices, and do not wish to be compelled to resort to analytical chemistry every time they buy a roll. It ought not to be necessary to confound counterfeits. There are all shades of opinion in regard to statutes concerning oleo, etc. Those who contend that they are proper, useful and wholesome articles of trade, should be met with the truth that, if so, they should be sold under their own name. Otherwise, it is too much like obtaining money under false pretenses.

A FAMILY MATTER

Is a family matter when the problem of buying groceries is under consideration. The wife knows what brand of goods has the flavor that suits the taste, and she knows from experience just how much the best should cost. Your part of the matrimonial contract in this respect is to let her choose her groceries—she can do it much better than you—and her mind will tell her to buy her provisions here.

Crockery is something we make a specialty of. Good qualities and low prices are jammed together in each article.

Lamps in so many different patterns and designs that we cannot enumerate. They are the best all-around lamps we could buy on the market. They are waiting for a test—why not give one a test now? Prices correct.

Chinaware for use and ornamentation in large varieties at prices that cannot help but tempt your pocket-book and the quality is in every piece.

Woodenware Wash tubs, bowls, baskets, etc., in an almost wholesale variety. The prices on these articles are low while the qualities are high.

MRS. M. J. RODMAN & CO.'S

Three Doors East of Columbus State Bank.

—We quote the following from the Spokane (Washington) Review, giving it in full because it gives interesting items concerning a former Nebraska boy, in whose welfare many JOURNAL readers are interested: "W. H. Burt has declined the position of assistant postmaster tendered him by Postmaster Hartson, and Byron Dieffenbach, the incumbent, will be retained indefinitely, probably throughout Mr. Hartson's term of office. Mr. Burt decided to retain his position with the Washington Water Power company," said Postmaster Hartson yesterday, "and I have decided to retain Mr. Dieffenbach for an indefinite period." It is generally understood in postoffice circles that Mr. Dieffenbach's reappointment is a permanent one, and he was the recipient of many congratulations. He is regarded as an exceedingly competent man, and among those who are highly pleased are the postal inspectors. A great part of the detailed work of the office devolves upon the assistant postmaster. When Postmaster Temple's office was checked up recently, prior to Mr. Hartson's assuming charge, the accounts of the office, which were largely under Mr. Dieffenbach's supervision checked to the cent. The inspectors who checked up the office say that it was one of the best conducted in the United States, and that the credit is due not only to Mr. Temple, but to Mr. Dieffenbach as well. Mr. Dieffenbach was appointed by Mr. Temple in October, 1899, to succeed J. F. Leghorn. Mr. Dieffenbach was formerly in the railway mail service, and has been familiar with postal matters nearly all his life."

—The JOURNAL thinks that Spencer's cartoon take-off representing the meeting of the State Press association at Lincoln Tuesday of last week shows artistic ability of a rare order. The length of the cartoon, eight inches, presents about one-third the height of the representative editor, whose hat-band has on its front in plain view, the editorial "We"—badge on the left breast "We"—Nebraska Press Association. We don't know of any just such a looking editor, and we are confident that in the pages of our scrap-book there is none such, in all particulars. He is not a dude; he is careless of his dress, and wears a broad-brimmed hat, as if to say "you may consider me a Quaker or a cow-boy, just as you will, but play the game fair, and I will stay with you; at the best or worst, this game of life which you and I are honestly striving to play to the best of our ability, is intensely interesting, and is as a school for us, out of the seeming wisdom of facts and fancies, to think our way to the general principles, which alone are, after all, of real worth." A subordinate place of the cartoon is given to President Maspin with "Some things I got next to in the Bible," and "Pomas I have writ." The originality, the personality of the artist appear in some other touches discernible that, somewhat resembling copyright, it is at least courtesy to not remark upon. TEN JOURNAL shall not be surprised to hear of Spencer's genius being more universally recognized.
